1	pursuant to the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act Amendments Act of 2008 ("Unclassified
2	Report"). Congress mandated the Unclassified Report in section 301 of the FISA Amendments
3	Act of 2008, P.L. 110-261, and the Unclassified Report is admissible as a public record under Fed
4	R. Evid. 803(8) and 902(5).
5	2. The Unclassified Report reflects a substantial amount of information surrounding
6	the "President's Surveillance Program" that is both unclassified and calls into question the legali
7	of aspects of that Program. (See, e.g., pp. 19-20). The Unclassified Report bolsters this Court's
8	decision in Hepting v. AT&T, 439 F. Supp. 2d 974, 993-4 (N.D. Cal. 2006) that the very subject
9	matter of Hepting and of this case is not a state secret, and demonstrates that broad aspects of the 10	Program can be addressed in the open without undermining the national security of the United
11	States. The Unclassified Report also calls into serious question the effectiveness of the Program
12	(see, e.g., pp. 31-36), noting that most leads generated by the Program "were determined not to
13	have any connection to terrorism" and that most Intelligence Community officials "had difficulty
14	citing specific instances where [the Program] had directly contributed to counterterrorism
