1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Unable to raise a valid argument in opposition to CAIR's fee motion, Michael Savage 3 instead offers yet another inflammatory screed aimed not at illuminating any material issue but 4 instead at clouding the only matter before this Court: applying the appropriate legal standard for 5 evaluating attorney fee applications under 17 U.S.C. § 505. On that issue, Savage has nothing to 6 say. He offers no substantive argument regarding CAIR's entitlement to a fee award, and he does 7 not dispute the reasonableness of the fees sought or the hourly rates or time incurred by CAIR's 8 counsel.

9 Instead, Savage continues to misuse the Court's docket to level groundless accusations 10 against CAIR while hiding behind the litigation privilege. For example, no longer content to 11 shamelessly toss around terms like "terrorist" and "terrorism," Savage now argues that it would be 12 a "reasonable interpretation of the law" to hold that CAIR's public criticism of his radio program 13 is akin to "cross burning." Opposition at pp. 10-11. In addition, according to his "Third Amended 14 Complaint," Savage now argues that CAIR's public criticism of Savage's radio program somehow 15 amounts to extortion. Exhibit 1 to Declaration of Daniel A. Horowitz in Opposition to CAIR's 16 Motion for Attorneys' Fees ("Horowitz Decl.") at ¶¶ 13-17, 81, 90-91, 95, 641-643. As with his 17 previous filings, Savage's Opposition appears more tailored to be fodder for his national radio 18 program than to press any legitimate legal point. With every filing, Savage offers yet more 19 unreasonable and frivolous behavior, factors that further favor CAIR and its Motion. See, e.g., 20 Perfect 10, Inc. v CCBill, LLC, 488 F.3d 1102, 1120 (9th Cir. 2007) (requiring the court to 21 consider the objective unreasonableness of a party's claims, "both in the factual and in the legal 22 components of the case.").

23 As the Court noted in its Order of July 25, 2008, which summarily dismissed Savage's 24 claims, "the gravamen of plaintiff's dispute is with the ideas that defendants may or may not 25 espouse." Order at p. 14. For all of his protests and attempts to recast this frivolous litigation in a 26 more favorable light in order to evade a fee award, Savage's position remains the same today.
27 Distilled to its essence, Savage argues in his Opposition that (1) Savage could have won had he 28 wanted to (though he openly concedes that he lost), and (2) in any case, the positions taken by

1 Savage – which were unequivocally and correctly rejected by the Court – were in fact “close calls”
 2 which should result in a denial of fees to CAIR. As neither argument has merit or even remotely 3 addresses the applicable fee standard, CAIR’s Motion should be granted in full.

 5 II. ARGUMENT

6 A. Savage Challenges Neither CAIR’s Attorneys’ Rates Nor Their Submitted 7 Hours.

8 Savage challenges neither the appropriateness of CAIR’s attorneys’ rates nor their hours 9 expended on the successful defense of this litigation. Aside from nakedly stating that the Court 10 should not award any fees at all, Savage introduces neither argument nor evidence in support of 11 his position. See, e.g., Fed’n of Fly Fishers v. Daley, 200 F. Supp. 2d 1181, 1193 (N.D. Cal. 2002) 12 (granting full requested fee amount where “defendants submit no factual evidence in opposition to 13 the proposed fee. ... Based on the evidence before it, the Court determines that [the proposed] 14 hourly rate ... is reasonable.”); Jobete Music Co., Inc. v. Media Broadcasting Corp., 713 F. Supp.
 15 174, 180 (M.D.N.C. 1988) (awarding the full fees sought under 17 U.S.C. § 505 by the moving 16 party, noting that “Defendants have submitted no evidence disputing this fee nor any evidence 17 possibly mitigating against an award of attorney’s fees and costs.”). Offering the Court no basis to 18 contradict the evidence submitted by CAIR in support of its Motion, Savage effectively concedes 19 the second step of the Ninth Circuit’s two-part copyright attorneys’ fees standard.

20 Savage would in fact be hard-pressed to argue that the rates submitted or amount sought by 21 CAIR are excessive as he has publicly confirmed that his own fees for the same litigation far 22 exceed those sought by CAIR. See Exhibit G to Declaration of Matthew Zimmerman of August 23 29, 2008 (Docket No. 42) (April 4, 2008, posting on Savage’s website noting that the legal cost of 24 this case “thus far” “is about $150,000” and that donations from his audience had “gotten us this 25 far”);¹ Exhibit 1 to Supplemental Declaration of Matthew Zimmerman of October 31, 2008

26 ¹ “IMPORTANT NOTICE TO MY DEAR SUPPORTERS: Thus far, the legal cost is about 27 $150,000! This is only first base on the long road of this important First-Amendment case.
 28 Contrary to what some believe, this case is NOT – I repeat NOT – being represented pro-bono.
 Your donations have gotten us this far, and with your continued support, we will fight for our freedom of speech all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, if necessary. Thank you, Michael Savage.”

1 (“Supplemental Zimmerman Decl.”) (September 18, 2008, website notice stating that Savage’s 2 legal costs associated with this litigation are now “over $250,000.”)² See also Exhibit 1 to 3 Horowitz Decl. at ¶ 13 (“Michael Savage has incurred costs and attorney’s fees in order to protect 4 is [sic] property both tangible and intangible from damage by the Hobbs Act extortion(s) of CAIR.
 5 The losses are in excess of $200,000 and are continuing.”)³

6 In any case, as pointed out in CAIR’s opening brief, the billable rates of its attorneys are 7 reasonable and well within the prevailing hourly rates in the San Francisco Bay Area for lawyers 8 of comparable education, expertise, and experience who handle matters of the type involved in this 9 litigation, a fact confirmed by a wide range of courts in recent years. See Declaration of Daralyn 10 Durie in Support of Defendants’ Motion for Award of Attorneys’ Fees (Docket No. 44) at ¶ 7; 11 Declaration of Thomas R. Burke in Support of Defendants’ Motion for Award of Attorneys’ Fees 12 (Docket No. 48) at ¶ 6. See also CAIR’s Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support of its 13 Motion for Attorneys’ Fees at pp. 11-13. Savage makes no assertion and offers no evidence to the 14 contrary.

15 B. Savage Does Not Materially Challenge CAIR’s Argument and Supporting 16 Evidence That a Fee Award Pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 505 Is Appropriate.

17 In addition to failing to offer any argument against the specific fees sought by CAIR, 18 Savage does not materially challenge the application of the relevant 17 U.S.C. § 505 factors 19 weighed in the Ninth Circuit to determine whether fees should be rewarded at all. See, e.g., Wall 20 Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Dept., 447 F.3d 769, 787 (9th Cir. 2006) (factors the 21 district court may consider include “(1) the degree of success obtained, (2) frivolousness, (3) 22 motivation, (4) reasonableness of losing party’s legal and factual arguments, and (5) the need to 23 ² “Thank you again to all of you who have contributed to continue the fight for free speech. As 24 you may know, I was forced to drop my lawsuit against CAIR for non-legal reasons.

 25 Unfortunately after spending over $250,000, I discovered the legal system is stacked against patriots and favors even those who are unindicted co-conspirators in a federal anti-terrorism trial.”

26 ³ Savage’s counsel filed a declaration in opposition to CAIR’s fee motion asserting that his fees 27 for this litigation amounted to only $30,000, in sharp contrast to the $250,000 that his client 28 publicly represented had been spent to date in legal fees on this matter. See Horowitz Decl. at ¶ 10. As Mr. Horowitz has only attested to his own fees and not to all legal fees spent by Savage for purposes of this litigation, CAIR will assume that the much larger amounts that Savage repeatedly identified in his fundraising appeals on his radio program and on his website, as well as in his “Third Amended Complaint,” were in fact accurate.

1 advance considerations of compensation and deterrence.”). Instead, he appears to argue (1) that 2 despite not challenging the Court’s Order of July 25, 2008, he would have won had he moved for 3 reconsideration, filed yet another amended complaint, or appealed; and (2) that his arguments 4 were not frivolous because, despite binding precedent to the contrary, a chance existed that the 5 Court might have ruled in his favor. Neither of these arguments is correct, let alone remotely 6 relevant.

7 First, as discussed fully in its fee motion, CAIR unequivocally won. Savage’s case was 8 dismissed in its entirety at the pleadings stage (with prejudice) after the Court dismissed his 9 copyright infringement claim and after Savage failed to submit an amended complaint attempting 10 to remedy the multiple fatal shortcomings in his RICO claim. To the extent that a complete 11 dismissal informs a court’s fee decision, it weighs solely in favor of the victorious party. See, e.g., 12 Smith v. Jackson, 84 F.3d 1213, 1221 (9th Cir. 1996) (court to consider “degree of success 13 obtained”); Fantasy, Inc. v. Fogerty, 94 F.3d 553, 559 (9th Cir. 1996) (“Fogerty II”) (upholding 14 defendant’s award of $1,347,519.15 in attorney’s fees under 17 U.S.C. § 505 where the 15 defendant’s “degree of success obtained” was complete); Jackson v. Sturkie, 255 F. Supp. 2d 16 1096, 1104 (N.D. Cal. 2003) (finding the plaintiff’s success to be “complete and unquestioned” 17 and an “award of attorneys’ fees appropriate.”). Savage had ample opportunity to craft and defend 18 valid causes of action if any existed in his initial Complaint, his First Amended Complaint, his 19 Second Amended Complaint, in his opposition to CAIR’s Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings, 20 and at oral argument. Savage was instead unable to do so because the fundamental premise of his 21 case was fatally and irredeemably flawed.

22 Second, despite the fact that his unfiled “Third Amended Complaint” is wholly irrelevant
23 to the Court’s evaluation of CAIR’s fee motion, this hypothetical Complaint would not have cured 24 the fundamental flaws identified by the Court. While he dwells at length on “new evidence” 25 allegedly tying CAIR to Hamas, Savage’s attached exhibit would once again fail to address the 26 shortcomings identified in the Court’s Order even if it was appropriately before the Court, such as 27 the fact that Savage’s alleged injury “is entirely focused upon defendants’ speech-related 28

1 activities” and that “plaintiff lacks standing to bring his civil RICO claim and has failed to allege 2 proximate cause.” See, e.g., Order at pp. 17, 19.

3 Third, Savage’s only attempt to address any of the relevant fee factors identified in CAIR’s 4 opening brief – that his argument was not frivolous – is similarly unpersuasive. As the Court 5 repeatedly pointed out in its Opinion, Savage did not raise any novel or unsettled question of law.
6 Far from it. Indeed, the Court repeatedly noted that Savage’s arguments had been “squarely 7 rejected by the Supreme Court” or otherwise precluded by controlling law. Order at p. 12.⁴

8 Even if Savage’s arguments were not objectively “frivolous” (though they are), this gains 9 him little. Frivolity is merely one of several factors that the Court may use to evaluate the central 10 objective identified by the Ninth Circuit; instead, “[f]aithfulness [of considered factors] to the 11 purposes of the Copyright Act is . . . the pivotal criterion.” Fogerty II, 94 F.3d at 558. As the 12 Ninth Circuit has pointed out, “‘exceptional circumstances’ are not a prerequisite to an award of 13 attorneys fees; district courts may freely award fees, as long as they treat prevailing plaintiffs and 14 prevailing defendants alike and seek to promote the Copyright Act’s objectives.” Historical 15 Research v. Cabral, 80 F.3d 377, 378 (9th Cir. 1996). Both the Supreme Court and the Ninth 16 Circuit have repeatedly held that a successful fair use defense promotes those objectives. See, e.g., 17 Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc., 510 U.S. 517, 527 (1994) (“Fogerty I”) (“[I]t is peculiarly important that 18 the boundaries of copyright law be demarcated as clearly as possible.”); Los Angeles News Service 19 v. Reuters Television Intern., Ltd., 149 F.3d 987, 997 (9th Cir. 1998) (a successful fair use defense 20 “serve[s] the purposes of the Copyright Act” and warrants an award of fees under 17 U.S.C. § 21 505.).

22 _____
23 ⁴ See also, e.g., Order at p. 7 (“Plaintiff tries to conflate ‘motive’ with the purpose and character of 24 the use, which is not permitted by the case law.”); Id. (“Plaintiff places primary reliance on the 25 Supreme Court’s reasoning in Harper and Row, but it does not go so far as plaintiff contends.”); 26 Order at p. 15 (“[T]he Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit have made clear that the First 27 Amendment may be used as a shield to protect those engaged in ‘petitioning’ in the form of civil 28 lawsuits and pre-litigation demand letters.”); Order at p. 17 (“Plaintiff’s complaint appears to raise precisely the First Amendment problems in the RICO context recognized by Justices Souter and Kennedy and the Third Circuit.”); Order at p. 19 (“[T]he Court finds that plaintiff’s Second Amended Complaint is similar to the complaint at issue in Pelletier v. Zweifel, 921 F.2d 1465, 1518-19 (11th Cir. 1991), in which the Eleventh Circuit affirmed the district court’s dismissal of a RICO claim because it was brought to harass the defendant and constituted ‘shotgun’ pleadings that made it extremely difficult for the court and opposing parties to identify the facts that would give rise to a cognizable claim.”).

1 Fourth, the inability of the parties to settle this matter on terms of Savage's liking is wholly 2 immaterial to an evaluation of CAIR's fee motion. The notion that it was somehow incumbent on 3 the Defendants to actively seek settlement of frivolous claims with a Plaintiff who repeatedly 4 smeared them on his nationally-syndicated radio program and in court filings as "terrorists" is 5 absurd. Indeed, Savage even asserts that CAIR should have engaged with him to "discuss a 6 resolution of this case before filing." Opposition at p.1 (emphasis added). CAIR had no 7 obligation to reach settlement with a litigant intent on pursuing an obvious public propaganda 8 agenda or to in any way compromise CAIR's clear legal rights. See, e.g., Moore v. Southtrust
 9 Corp., 392 F. Supp. 2d 724, 735 (E.D. Va. 2005) ("The plaintiff now claims that . . . the defendant 10 could have avoided a large portion of the attorney's fees if the defendant had simply settled the 11 case. However, the defendant was under no obligation to settle the plaintiff's fraudulent claims, 12 and thus, encourage others to file such fraudulent claims in the future.").

13 The continued misrepresentations of Mr. Horowitz, and now Mr. Boyd, are unfortunate as 14 they erroneously allege that CAIR's counsel failed to satisfy its meet-and-confer obligations.
 15 Counsel did in fact meet and confer with Mr. Boyd regarding CAIR's fee motion, a conversation 16 that confirmed that there was little reason to believe that further conversations would be anything 17 but a waste of time. See Zimmerman Supplemental Decl. at ¶¶ 3-4. Even if counsel had not met 18 and conferred, however, Savage's ongoing behavior only underscores the futility of such an 19 exercise. Beyond the unending public slurs, Savage argues in his Opposition that CAIR is entitled 20 to no fees (see, e.g., Opposition at p. 25), but his counsel suggests, incredibly, that Savage was 21 prepared to make a "sizable donation" to CAIR co-counsel EFF, apparently in the hopes that this 22 would cause EFF to encourage CAIR to settle. Horowitz Decl. at ¶ 22. As if it needed to be 23 stated, fee awards under 17 U.S.C. § 505 are made to prevailing parties,⁵ not counsel,⁶ and it

24 ⁵ See 17 U.S.C. § 505 ("[T]he court in its discretion may . . . award a reasonable attorney's fee to 25 the prevailing party as part of the costs." (emphasis added)).

26 ⁶ See, e.g., Evans v. Jeff D., 475 U.S. 717, 730 (1986) (holding that in enacting a "prevailing 27 party" standard, Congress did not "bestow[] fee awards upon attorneys. . ."); Venegas v. Mitchell, 28 495 U.S. 82, 87, 88 (1990) ("[I]t is the party, rather than the lawyer, who is so eligible [for a prevailing party fee award] . . .") (citing Evans v. Jeff D., 475 U.S. at 730); Pony v. County of Los Angeles, 433 F.3d 1138, 1146 (9th Cir. 2006) (holding that "prevailing party" attorneys' fees [under 42 U.S.C. § 1988] "belong[] to clients, not to attorneys" (citing Evans v. Jeff D., 475 U.S. at 730)."

1 would be improper for counsel to even consider such a suggestion.⁷ See, e.g., May v.
 2 Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 2005 WL 839291 at *1 (N.D. Cal. April 7, 2005) (granting plaintiff's 3 motion for attorneys' fees where the defendant opposed the motion on the basis that plaintiff's 4 counsel did not meet and confer pursuant to Local Rule 54-6(b) but where the plaintiff's surreply 5 suggested that complying with meet and confer requirement would be futile); Yue v. Storage 6 Technology Corp., 2008 WL 4185835 at *1 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 5, 2008) ("The Court finds that Judge
 7 Laporte properly considered Plaintiff's contentions and her finding that the meet and confer 8 conference would have been futile so as to not warrant striking Defendants' motion for fees is 9 consistent with the Court's interpretation of Civil Local Rule 54-6(b).").

10 C. Since This Court's Order Affirming CAIR's Fair Use of Savage Radio Show 11 Excerpts, Savage Has Continued His Attempts To Misuse Copyright Law to 12 Silence Online Critics Who Posted and Criticized the Same Material.

13 If Savage's own arguments and behavior in this case do not adequately illustrate the need 14 to award fees as a deterrent against future abuse, his behavior since the Court's July 25th Order 15 should. According to a complaint filed in this district by Plaintiff Brave New Films, on September 16 29, 2008 – 66 days after the Court dismissed Savage's copyright infringement claim with 17 prejudice and 46 days after the entry of final judgment in this case – counsel for the Original Talk 18 Radio Network ("OTRN," the syndicator for Savage's radio program) sent a baseless DMCA
 19 takedown notice⁸ demanding that online video site YouTube remove a video utilizing for purposes 20 of criticism and commentary the same copyrighted material that this Court found to be protected 21 by the fair use doctrine in this case. See Exhibit 2 to Supplemental Zimmerman Decl. (Brave New 22 Films v. Savage Complaint (Case No. CV08-04703 JL)) at ¶¶ 22, 23; Exhibit 3 to Supplemental 23 ⁷ See, e.g., Cal Pak Delivery, Inc. v. United Parcel Service, Inc., 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 209 (Cal.

 24 Ct. App. 1997) ("In this case we determine whether the trial court abused its discretion in 25 disqualifying [Plaintiff's counsel] where [he] admitted he had offered to sell out his client and the 26 class which the client was seeking to represent for a payment to himself personally of 27 approximately $8 to $10 million. We believe that to state the question is to answer it."). See also 28 California Rule of Professional Conduct 1-120 ("A member shall not knowingly assist in, solicit, or induce any violation of these rules or the State Bar Act.").

⁸ The September 29, 2008, DMCA takedown notice issued by Original Talk Radio Network to YouTube notes that "OTRN does not, by this letter, disclaim, release or speak for the separate rights of Michael Savage" but does not disclaim a role by Savage in sending the baseless notice.
 Even if Savage played no direct role, this latest abusive legal filing further demonstrates the pattern of Savage and his proxies (see CAIR's Motion for Attorneys' Fees at p. 10) of initiating groundless legal processes targeting First Amendment protected speech critical of Savage.

1 Zimmerman Decl. (OTRN DMCA takedown notice of September 29, 2008). This latest 2 bewildering attempt to ignore the dictates of copyright law – and to flaunt the Court’s fair use
 3 findings here – underscores the compelling need to deter Savage and those acting in his interest 4 from future abuses.⁹

5 D. Savage’s Immaterial and Inflammatory Exhibits Should be Stricken From the 6 Record.

7 Savage’s Opposition rests almost entirely on an attempt to reargue positions that the Court 8 rejected. By definition, the exhibits he filed in opposition to CAIR’s Motion for this purpose are 9 “redundant,” “immaterial,” and “impertinent.” See Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(f).
 10 Moreover, by filing this irrelevant and offensive material, Savage continues his pattern of abusing 11 this privileged forum to make false and inflammatory statements to serve interests outside the 12 courtroom. The exhibits to Savage’s Opposition, having no bearing on this litigation, should be 13 stricken from the record.

14 III. CONCLUSION

15 CAIR completely prevailed against Michael Savage’s frivolous claims that targeted 16 CAIR’s First Amendment-protected speech. CAIR has met the legal standard for the awarding of 17 attorneys’ fees to prevailing parties pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 505, a standard that is not in dispute.
 18 CAIR’s costs and fees prior to the filing of this Reply, as documented in its fees Motion, amount 19 to $189,898.10. The additional fees accrued for purposes of reviewing Savage’s Opposition and 20 its voluminous attachments and drafting this Reply amount to $15,160. In total, CAIR seeks 21 $205,058.10 in fees and costs. CAIR respectfully urges this Court to grant its Motion in full so 22 that it will be fully compensated for its fees and costs associated with the successful defense of

24 _____
 25 ⁹ The DMCA misuse lawsuit filed against Savage’s syndicator raises an additional troubling 26 question: did Savage even have the right to file this lawsuit? According to the DMCA takedown 27 notice issued to YouTube on September 29, 2008, he apparently did not. In this notice, OTRN’s 28 counsel writes “[U]nder penalty of perjury, I state that this office represents the owner of an exclusive right infringed by the specified material,” including the copyrighted excerpts that Savage sued upon here. See Exhibit 3 to Supplemental Zimmerman Decl. If Mr. Glahn’s statement made under penalty of perjury is true, only OTRN (and not Savage) is legally entitled to “initiate legal action” alleging copyright infringement regarding the copyrighted material in question.

1 this case and to deter Michael Savage from future baseless attempts to abridge CAIR's First 2 Amendment rights.
